

Keyser honored at retirement celebration

Keyser faces retirement with a good sense of humor as family dress him up in 'safety gear' outfit

PHOTO COURTESY OF TAMARA BARRY

John Keyser, college president, is presented with a trout sculpture as a retirement gift. From left, Chuck Clemans, Foundation Board member; David Dickson, assistant to the president; John Keyser with wife Marilynn; Phil Stevens, chair of the Foundation Board and Roger Rook, chair of the College Board.

MAGGIE JIRASEK / Clackamas

John Keyser stands by his portrait which will be hung at the college with those of other former Clackamas presidents.

CONTRIBUTED PHOTO

Barbara Roberts (right), former governor of Oregon and friend of the Keyser family, joined the retirement celebration. Sitting next to her are Maggie Jirasek, Clackamas Print reporter, and John Keyser.

MAGGIE JIRASEK / Clackamas

Seth Eisenberg, John Keyser's son-in-law (left), talks to Dian Connett, dean of instructional/student services (right) and her husband Doug.

MAGGIE JIRASEK / Clackamas Print

Tom Wakeling, music instructor at Clackamas, speaks to Suzy Alexander, John Keyser's secretary. Wakeling entertained guests with his bass.

PHOTO COURTESY OF TAMARA BARRY

Keyser's son and daughter outfitted him in 'safety gear' to prepare him for his retirement. On Keyser's back a sign says: "In case of emergency, call Suzy Alexander."

MAGGIE JIRASEK / Clackamas

Bryan Fuentez, ASG president, and Hayley Hill, student ambassador, enjoy their meal.