Do Jump!

Reeling in retirement

Acclaimed theatre troupe comes to Clackamas for a Saturday night performance

A&E Editor

Do Jump! is coming to Clackamas Community College this Saturday at 5 p.m. in the Randall Hall Gymnasium.

Do Jump! is a Portland-based dance/theater/acrobatic troupe that played to rave reviews in New York last April. This is a chance to see a special, site-specific, low-tech performance as well as a new piece commissioned by Clackamas Community College.

Additionally, interactive choreography that will include members of the local community has been incorporated into this performance. There is still time to become part of the show. A workshop for people nine-years and older will be held starting at 2 p.m. Saturday for those wishing to participate. If interested call 503-657-6958 ext. 2356 before 3 p.m. Friday to sign up.

Do Jump's performance at Clackamas Community College is funded through money raised at the annual pARTy, a fund raiser for the arts. This event has raised more than $90,000 in the last five years.

Tickets for the Saturday night performance are $5 for adults and $3 for students and senior citizens. Children 12 and under are free.

The annual International Celebration which is being held today and tomorrow features Native American, Latin, German, French, and Indian cultural experiences.

The celebration was developed from the Foreign Language Department's international food festival and includes participants from campus foreign language clubs.

Throughout the cultural awareness celebration, an international art display will be open in the Pauling Center.

The International Celebration is free to the public and ethnic foods will be for sale in the community center.

MshkolahneeManito, advisor of the Native American club, kicked off International Week yesterday with a flute presentation and singing.
