"I love the fact that we're all together in a central location, which makes it easier to communicate with each other and students."

Rochelle Feltz
DEPARTMENT SECRETARY

"As confusing as it was, with the crunch of the snow, I think we did really well. I think it was frustrating for students because it was new. For the most part, however, I think the students did well and I was extremely impressed with this department; they were awesome."

The Print asked Student Services Staff:

"What is your favorite thing about the transition into Rook Hall and what effect do you think it has had on the students?"

"We were way too jammed together before; everything is close at hand now. The people we work with most are in the same area of the building. I think students were confused at first with the serpentine-style line, but I think its going to be great, we're all just getting used to it."

"I think it's really open, airy and welcoming. We have a lot more space than we had in the Community Center. There's also a lot of space here for students. I think the way we've organized the services is more convenient."

Glenna Baer
RECORDS SPECIALIST

"I love the atmosphere and the new building - how it's open, with all the windows. We've gotten a lot of feedback from students that they don't like to go from line to line, and they can do a lot of services at one place now. I think that's pretty positive for students."

"This building was actually designed to facilitate the jobs we do, whereas the Community Center space was a lounge that ventured into an office. The best thing about Rook is that I have daylight; we all have a window! I don't have as much interactions with the students, which is a downside—But the upside is I get a lot more work done [for the students]."
