

Spaced Valentines' Day?

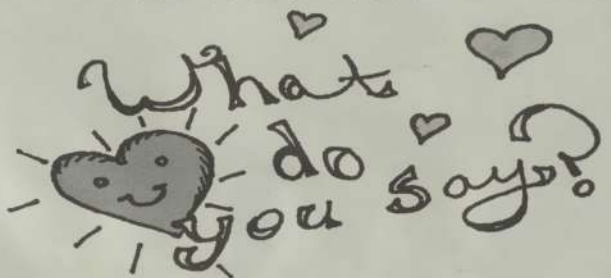

So you're depressed and lonely... At least your dog loves you.

Only remember the wrong kind of animal love is illegal.

We didn't ^.^

Let's risk communicable diseases TOGETHER!
HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY!

Rhapsody used to be part of The Clackamas Print, until several years ago, for quite some time. It was a place for students to see their poetry and other short fiction pieces of writing in print; a true representation of students' works. To submit a piece, drop it by room 135 in Roger Rook Hall or e-mail it to aced@clackamas.edu.

Express yourself! Speak out!

On Monday, Feb. 18, the issue of free speech will take the stage. Students, faculty and community members are invited to tackle free speech at a "soap box" forum in the Bill Brod Community Center throughout the day.

In the Niemeyer Center beginning at 6 p.m., Political Science Instructor Dean Darris will give a primer on the First Amendment. There will also be a free speech debate among members of Clackamas' award-winning speech team. A dramatic reading from "Fahrenheit 451" will be performed by Tobias Anderson, a longtime collaborator with Ray Bradbury. The event will conclude with a performance art event around the theme of burning books.

Mother

By Mike Takeyama

And to all of you, a special place in my heart. With overwhelming happiness, I can remember each smile. I know deep down how much you care, not why? Your soothing arms pick me up when I fall. Always teaching and willing to share your wisdom. It's always your gentleness that quiets my fear. A beacon of light and guiding truth. I never thank you enough, and never can. You go by many names but none more beautiful than Mom.

Dark Circle

By Greg Stein

A weight lifted
A freedom felt
Less restrained
And more

Power re-gathered
Deep breath taken
More true change
And less for

My chances renewed
Another new life
Less with simple
And more

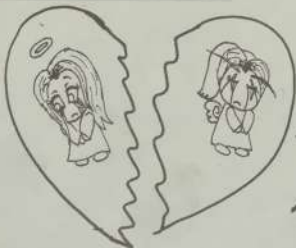

Does it re-loop
From dark to light
More tormenting
And less I

I must fight back
Can't just fall
Less for me
And more

Time to choose
To stand and sit
More of will
And less I

Now or never
A simple solution
Less is worse
And more
Revol

~Random Mist~

By Mistymarie Wilks-Salguero

You complete me ^.^

