The Clackamas Community College Veterans Club

All veteran spouses, student independents of veterans and Clackamas staff and faculty are invited to a mini grand opening of the college's Veterans Center in DeJardin Hall first floor, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 4. Refreshments will be served.

Letter to the Editor:

Hello, this is a concerned reader. I am writing about the dreadful review to the play "Fortinbras." I found the review a bleak description of a very enjoyable and entertaining production. I also believe that it was performed splendidly by the entire cast of characters, and that everyone fit their role. Clearly the reviewer does not understand the importance that this is a Shakespearian farce, and this is exactly where the sequel should pick up. I believe the new personalities of the returning characters really mirrored the original characters. The humor in the play is that they are the polar opposites of their living selves. And the idea that all mature audiences couldn't enjoy this is crazy; sure the humor is crude, but I believe that people appreciate an easy laugh over cultural gratification. Another point is that the character development is never going to be what people expect, and that's what keeps people coming to the theater.
