CCC softball pitcher signs with Concordia University

By Patty Salazar
The Clackamas Print

"I was signed to go to Idaho State," said Ashley Suter. Though, ultimately she couldn't go because of a credit situation. Luckily for Clackamas Community College she met Jessica Buel, CCC's head softball coach, through her summer coach and signed and started practicing a few weeks later. Suter, who was an All-American pitcher during the 2010 season, is now in her second year at Clackamas.

"My dad," Suter said with a smile, explaining who got her started with softball in the first place. "I actually started with t-ball when I was 6 and I really didn't like it, and he was like 'stick with it; stick with it.'"

Suter said that it was through meeting people and going to pitching clinics with her dad that she found she really liked to pitch and was good at it. "My dad definitely kick started this whole thing for me," she said.

"She's really dedicated to the sport but also on the field she is funny and makes us all relax so much," said Katie Aden, a freshman centerfielder for the softball team and Suter's best friend. "She's really confident, too. We all believe in her."

Aden and Suter have known each other since they were little. They played on little league teams against one another and eventually played on an all-star team together. They both went to Tigard High School and that's when Aden said they got really close.

She explained that, although the softball team doesn't have a captain, the freshman look up to the sophomores and they all get along well. "On a lot of other teams, there's drama, but we've all been really close and that's cool," she said.

"She's a butthead" were the first words that Gabe Edwards said when describing Suter. Edwards and Suter first met when she was 8 years old. He was working for a pitching clinic where he eventually met Suter. Edwards was also her junior and senior year at Tigard High.

"She's the life of the party for her team, that's for sure," Edwards said. "She's a kid who is going to be successful in whatever she decides to do. She gets along great with people."

Now 20 years old, Suter signed with Concordia University over winter break. "I'm so excited, so excited!" Suter exclaimed when she described how she feels about going to Concordia in the fall.

Although she is an art major and Concordia is mostly a marketing and business school, she said "It's all going to be kind of fit and work." She will be getting a minor in art and majoring in marketing.

While attending Tigard she was the editor of the yearbook and that was when she realized that she loved graphic design and that she could make a career out of something she loves and enjoys.

"I'd love to do anything with web design (and graphic design)," Suter said. "I'm a computer nerd."

But until that day comes, Suter is enjoying the time spent at CCC with her fellow softball players.

"This whole group of girls has worked really, really hard," Suter said. "That's something — especially being a sophomore and a pitcher — that I love to see, when everybody is working hard at practice and everybody wants to win. There are no 'cliques,' it's just everybody here is here for everybody. That's the best."
