SHUTTLE: Clackamas gets new way to travel

"[We] saw a need to continue the public transit from Clackamas Town Center to Clackamas Community College with minimal travel time," she said. "We are pleased to offer this service and hope to see it expanded and improved." In its infancy, the shuttle only ran four days a week, Monday through Thursday, and had an extra stop at the county offices in Oregon City. As transportation needs grew, so did the shuttle service's schedule. Friday service was added, which streamlined the route between the CCC and CTC. As the 2013-14 school year opened, the college administration began tracking calls to the Cougar Call Center about student issues and concerns with the shuttle service. The students voiced their concerns and the administration appears to have been listening. Starting Monday, Oct 14, the CTC shuttle has a new helper — a second bus with a staggered schedule to keep CCC students moving forward. Brenda Marks, who is CCC's faculty coordinator and overseees student life and leadership, said the goal is to help students. "We're really trying to respond to the students' needs," said Marks. "This is a trial to fit the needs and make sure the ridership is there." The college will post the new shuttle schedules showing times for both buses in the ASG office, as well as the bus turn-around. The schedules are also available on the college website. For further information or questions, contact the ASG office in CC 152 (right inside the cafeteria).
