Silver Falls shows its true beauty

With the fourth week of winter classes coming to an end, Clackamas Community College students could be looking for ways to relieve stress and enjoy what Oregon has to offer.

Oregonians rejoice! After a long awaited couple of weeks, the weather has been slowly but surely clearing up — at least for now. Time to put on those hiking shoes, pack a lunch and water and head out to Silver Falls State Park, Oregon's largest state park.

In 2013, Silver Falls had 870,000 visitors descend on the park, which is only about an hour south of Oregon City.

The park has something fun for everyone, but the most popular is the Trail of Ten Falls, which is an 8.7 mile hike with 10 blissful waterfalls.

For visitors who are not ready for the full Trail of Ten Falls hike, there is also the Silver Falls Lower Loop Hike, a 4.6 mile endeavor that a new hiker would appreciate.

The trail leads hikers by seven out of the 10 waterfalls, three of which one can walk behind and feel the mist. This hike is easy on the knees and worth every step!

As always, be careful on the trail. Earlier this month, a 10-year-old boy who rested against a faulty railing fell down a steep embankment.
