The Seattle Seahawks brought the Vince Lombardi trophy to the Northwest after dismantling the Denver Broncos 43-8 last Sunday in Superbowl XLVIII. The "Legion of Boom" lived up to their reputation of intense defense and forced four turnovers in the huge win. From start to finish the Seahawks controlled the pace and sent the Broncos back to Denver disappointed.

Seattle's night started by taking advantage of a huge error by Peyton Manning and the Broncos defense who snapped the ball early in the first play of the game. The ball went over Manning's head and was recovered by the Broncos' in their own end zone giving up two points on a safety. Denver struggled especially in the first half and was unable to advance the ball for a first down in the first quarter and did not score the entire half.

Two field goals by Steven Hauschka extended the Seattle lead to eight points by the end of the first quarter and a Kam Chancellor interception set up a second quarter touchdown from Marshawn Lynch.

Scoring in the first half wrapped up as Malcolm Smith intercepted a pass and returned it 69 yards for a touchdown, extending Seattle's lead to 22-0. The score along with 10 tackles and a fumble recovery on the night made the case for Smith who was awarded Superbowl MVP.

The Seahawks kept the energy going after Bruno Mars and the Red Hot Chili Peppers performed during the half time show as Percy Harvin returned the second half kickoff 87 yards for a touchdown. Seattle wide receiver and University of Washington Alumni Jermaine Kearse caught a pass from quarterback Russell Wilson and broke three tackles for a touchdown.

Denver's offense struggled the whole game, but was able to sneak in a score at the end of the third quarter as wide receiver Demaryius Thomas pulled down Peyton Manning's pass in the end zone. Wes Welker also caught a pass to convert for two points bringing the score to 36-8.

The touchdown was Denver's only glimmer of hope in the game but that spark was quickly extinguished as Seattle's quarterback Russell Wilson connected with wide receiver Doug Baldwin for a 10-yard touchdown and the final score of the game.

Wilson completed 18 of 25 passes in the game with two touchdowns on 206 yards, giving him a passer rating of 123.1. NFL MVP Peyton Manning completed 34 of 49 passes for 280 yards, a touchdown and two interceptions.

This was the Seahawks' first NFL championship since their inception in 1976. They previously appeared in Superbowl XL in 2006 but were defeated by the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Despite past disappointments, Seattle fans from all over the Pacific Northwest have reason to wear their colors with pride as their Seahawks are the 2014 Superbowl champions.
