

NWAACC Tourney Recap: Road to the championship

by BLAKE THOMASON
sports editor

The Clackamas Cougars softball team came in to the NWAACC championship tournament holding the no. 2 seed and finished with a 4-2 record over the weekend.

Both losses came at the hands of no. 1 seed Mt. Hood, a team Clackamas battled with all season. Each matchup before this tournament was split with both teams winning one game of each double-header. Since this tournament was double-elimination, one team was going to have to do something it hadn't done before: win two straight.

On Friday, Clackamas easily handled its opponents beating Everett 6-2 and Treasure Valley 11-1.

Saturday would be a completely different story. In Clackamas' first game, they just squeaked out a 3-2 victory over Wenatchee Valley. The second game of the day was against Mt. Hood and Clackamas fell short in a defensive battle, losing 1-2.

Sunday's games were rained out and moved to Monday. Clackamas had their spot in the semi-finals and awaited the winner of the Treasure Valley-Wenatchee Valley game to see who they'd face. Treasure Valley won their game and Clackamas beat them again in convincing fashion, 8-3. The win advanced Clackamas to the finals for the second time in three years.

The Clackamas Cougars' infielder Rashaun Sells gets a hit in the win against Treasure Valley Community College last Friday during the NWAACC Championship Tournament.

The Print live tweets from the game.

The Clackamas Print @ClackamasPrint Follow

Scoreless here after the 1st in the NWAACC semi-finals #CCCvsTVCC

12:22 PM - 19 May 2014

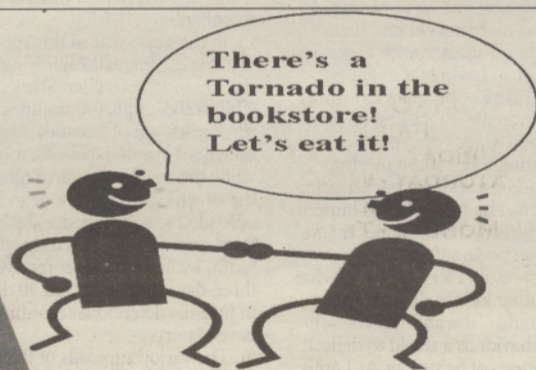

The Clackamas Print @ClackamasPrint Follow

Treasure Valley grounds out to end the game. CCC moving on to the finals against Mt. Hood!

1:41 PM - 19 May 2014

Follow us @ClackamasPrint for all the latest news and updates!

In a whirlwind to get to class?

No time for a meal?

Tornado Tuesdays! Two for $2!

Come in and enjoy a HOT Tornado snack roll or two!
Two for $2!