

Destitute Destinations

BY SUMMER BARRAZA
MULTIMEDIA EDITOR

The Destitute Diva is back again, but this time I'm travelling to unique and fun destinations in Oregon for cheap. Welcome to the first installment of Destitute Destinations, a series based on the advice column I started in fall 2018, where I gave advice on how to survive and succeed as a low-income college student. Destitute Destinations is the same but made for low-income college students who can't afford a trip to Disneyland or Europe or wherever you're interested in going - but everyone is deserving of a good time and a vacation. While newsprint isn't able to play video, and maybe one day it will with how technology is advancing, I encourage you to scan this QR code which will direct you to the video on our website.

We are kicking off this series at the Oregon State Hospital and Museum located in Salem, Oregon. The OSH is one of three hospitals in the United States that is also a museum and has been visited by students and people all over the world, like celebrity Michael Douglas - who donates to the museum yearly according to one volunteer at the museum. From admittance statistics, to lobotomy tables, to an homage to the novel and film One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, the museum and memorial is sure to give chills and an insight on the sanitariums past. The price to walk through this bit of history? $7. They recently changed the price on February 1. But for $7, you get 2 hours of educational entertainment. If you can't afford the 7 dollar entry fee the memorial right around the corner is free. This memorial holds the memory of more than 25,000 patients of the hospital - many of them have been unclaimed and some of them aren't even part of the hospital, but locals and prisoners.
