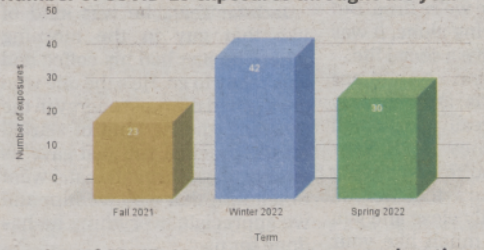
Long-jumper goes the distance

STORY AND PHOTO BY AYLA FASHANA

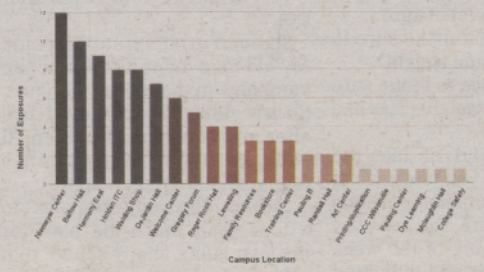
Teddy Atkinson achieves a personal record of 5.81M in the mens long jump at Oregon State High Performance Event.

Clackamas Community College track and field athletes took on the High Performance track meet hosted by Oregon State University on April 29 and 30, competing against 42 other teams. Four of the athletes set new personal records. Freshman Dillion Potter placed 2nd overall in the hammer throw, only 1.06 meters behind first place.

Number of COVID-19 exposures throught the year



Number of COVID-19 exposures at campus locations



GRAPHICS BY JOSEPH LOHMOLDER. ACCURATE AS OF JUNE 1, 2022.

Former vice wins presidential run uncontested

STORY BY ISAIH BURNS, PHOTO BY JOSEPH LOHMOLDER

Madalena Larkins, vice president of Clackamas Community College's Associated Student Government, will be the student body president next year. Larkins recently turned 16 and is a dual enrolled high school student. Read more about Madalena on our website.

Portlanders protest to protect abortion rights

STORY AND PHOTOS BY JOSEPH LOHMOLDER

Thousands of people gathered in downtown Portland for a "Bans Off Our Bodies" demonstration on Saturday, May 14. This event was one of many scheduled to take place across the country following a leak from the U.S. Supreme Court, which warns that a reversal of the Roe v. Wade decision on abortion could come soon.

The Clackamas Print had the opportunity to speak with a few of the event coordinators for Bans Off Our Bodies before the demonstration officially took place. Christel Allen from Pro-Choice Oregon said, "In this country, we have never had a constitutional right be taken away. I'm one of millions of people out today to say, 'fuck that.'"

The demonstration was a lively event. There were several stations set up throughout the area where people could buy merchandise, get water and snacks, or even do crafts if they got overwhelmed. Many people were playing music and canvassers moved through the crowd offering to help people sign up to vote. Read more about this story on our website.