Applegate solar tour coming October 4

On Saturday, October 4th, the Greater Applegate Community Development Corporation (GACDC) is teaming up with Earth Advantage and Energy Star to bring a solar tour to the Applegate Valley. The tour will feature two homes and two businesses located between Ruch and Slagle Creek. The event is tagged officially as “The Applegate Valley Green + Solar Tour,” and is a part of a nationwide series of tours sponsored by the American Solar Energy Society (ASES). While these tours have been held around the Rogue Valley for several years, this will be the first in the Applegate since 1986. Some of the old hands might remember the tour—it was coined “The Pioneer Tour,” and featured several solar homes on North Applegate Road.

This year's tour has a lot to offer those who are interested in building a green home or considering a solar retrofit. The homes are two recently built Earth Advantage-certified homes that are equipped with photovoltaic panels for electricity and solar heating systems for hot water. Both homes also feature healthy indoor environments. One home is a national award winner for energy efficient design. One of the businesses is a vintner that has retrofitted solar power and hot water systems.

All solar power systems on the tour are grid-tied (also called “net metering”), meaning that all excess electricity produced is funneled back to the power grid. Pacific Power pays for this via a power credit on the bill. All tour residences and businesses benefit from very small power bills.

The last stop on the tour is a local winery that features passive solar construction. This type of construction, using technology thousands of years old, takes the best advantage of siting and materials to capture the sun's energy in winter and keep naturally cool in summer.

At this last stop, music, wine and food will be provided. Green construction contractors, solar installers and other vendors of energy-efficient systems will be on hand to answer your questions. A representative of the Oregon Department of Energy also will be there to answer any questions you might have about tax credits and rebates offered by the state and the federal government. A representative from Earth Advantage, Inc. will be there to help explain the green construction certification process. And the City of Ashland is loaning us one of their energy consultants to help with the guided tour.

How to Register

Registration for the tour is online at www.earthadvantage.com. Link to “Classes and Events” to read more about it and click on “Register” to secure a place on the tour. The tour will be limited to the first 100 registrants. The tour will start at 10:00 am on Saturday, October 4, in the parking lot of the Ruch Community Bible Church on 190 Upper Applegate Road, next to the school. If you didn't get registered online, you can show up at 9:30 am to register late. Tickets will be sold for $10; no one under the age of 15, please. Bus transportation will be provided at no extra charge. We also will have maps for those who would prefer to carpool. Pack your own lunch. This is a guided tour with a set schedule. The tour is expected to last from 10:00 am until approximately 5:00 pm.. Mark your calendars and join us for a fun and educational day!
