continue to keep the music going.

Marvin the social worker cared about the people in his life, about the community he lived in, about the country we call America. He talked politics with passion and compassion. I learned a lot from Marvin about politics; number one being that you eat first (cookies are the best), and then you educate yourself about the issues and the politicians. Vote!!

The “Rosen-web,” a term I have stolen from a dear friend, included so many people from every corner of the Applegate. Marvin and Lilli Ann’s home was a gathering place where you would meet someone for the first time and find a friend for life. You would go there and find your neighbor and you were surprised to find out you both knew the Rosenbergs.

I know the list could go on and on, from contributions to the Applegater to fundraising for GACDC, and Ruch School. I know that everyone who knew Marvin has a story they could tell, from his poker night buddies to his grandchildren. I am pretty sure those stories would reflect what I saw in Marvelous Marvin, humor, song accompanied by accordion, poet, sage, crochet hat, passion, and oh yes, mischievousness. And Marvin, I really liked your oatmeal.
