THANKSGIVING!!!!

Kind and Loving People,

I want to express how your outpourings of sympathy and offers of help and comfort have touched my heart. The sudden loss of my wonderful husband has indeed left me grief stricken.

Still, I wish to return next week to my work and to your company. I know that when I do, I will not be able to thank each of you personally without tears and other expressions of emotion. It is because of this that I am writing.

I want you to know that I love and care for all of you. I know that, as a community, you have your own burdens to bear and losses to grieve. For this, you have been in my prayers for many months. I have watched you come together on several occasions to comfort and help one another. I have seen those among you, grieving the losses of your own loved ones, put aside your sorrows and grief to aid and comfort others.

This degree of selflessness and sense of community I have neither seen nor felt anywhere else. I truly feel blessed that you have chosen to envelope me within your circle of love and concern. For this, I thank you, and pray for peace and contentment within you and among you.

*With all sincerity and regard,
Jeni Olsen*

Our Condolences to Jeni Olsen, and the family of Bill Olsen on their recent loss.

Our Condolences to the family of Franklin Charley on their recent loss.

Although words cannot bring them back, perhaps the prayers and concerns of those members around you can help ease your pain.
