OCTOBER WORKSHOP ADDS NATIVE WISDOM TO SCIENTIFIC DATA ON GLOBAL CLIMATE CHANGE

Voices from Native America brought fresh perspectives to the body of scientific evidence that suggests humans are disrupting the balance of the world's climate. A Native Peoples/Native Homelands Climate Change Workshop was held from October 28 - Nov. 1st in Albuquerque, New Mexico, bringing together traditional Native elders, tribal leaders, scholars, educators and scientists to document cultural and historical knowledge of climate change the relationship between indigenous peoples and Mother Earth. It was one of 20 meetings being held around the country to examine the potential consequences of climate change on the U.S. population, environment and economy. The workshop was co-sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, American Indian Chamber of Commerce of New Mexico and the City of Albuquerque. For more information, please contact Verna Teller, Project Director at (505) 242-3351.
