Several representatives from the Region X office of the Environmental Protection Agency visited with Tribal Council in June. They discussed how the EPA and the tribe can work together on environmental issues and how the tribe's General Assistance Program (GAP) grants are helping it put
