Roo Arledge - Director of Food and Beverage

Chinook Winds is pleased to announce the hiring of Marguerite "Roo" Arledge as the director of Food and Beverage.

An Australian native from the "land down under," Arledge spent most of her career in the non-gaming side of hospitality. She moved to Nashville, Tenn., and held several food and beverage management positions at the Opryland Hotel, a 3000-room property with 650,000 square feet of catering/exhibit space and home of the Grand Ole Opry.

After several promotions and six years with the Gaylord-Opryland Hotel Company, Arledge decided to spread her wings and join the Sheraton Nashville Downtown Hotel, a franchised property of Starwood Hotels & Resorts, Inc., as the director of Food and Beverage.

When asked why she chose to come to Chinook Winds, Arledge replied, "I think it was the friendliness of the people at Chinook Winds, that impressed me the most! Chinook Winds is an exciting gaming resort and Lincoln City is a marvelous town. I think it's one of America's best kept secrets and because I grew up on the oceanfront, as most 'Aussies' do, living by the ocean again is an added bonus.

"The Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians have so much history, and it's very fascinating. It's inspiring to see the Tribal Council so focused in exceeding guest expectations and enhancing employee relations. I accepted the position because it will give me the opportunity to work with great people, the Tribal Council, management and staff, in an exhilarating, challenging, and energetic atmosphere. My goal is to 'wow' the Chinook Winds' guests with friendly, efficient service while embellishing them in culinary delights. My mission is to help establish Chinook Winds as a premier casino and destination point, not only in the state of Oregon, but nationally as well as internationally."
