The Family Circle

by Edward Eugene Ehret

*The bond between your family
Is the strongest of all things I know.
For it is without this bond,
We'd have nowhere to go.
This bond that is formed,
From the day of your birth
And carried on every waking moment
That you walk this Earth.
These are the people that watch over you,
With their caring paws
And are there to help protect you,
No matter what the clause.
For it is these people that carry you
In their heart and soul
And are there to help protect you,
No matter what the roll.
When you feel you're in hell,
They feel it as well,
So they gently use their paws
To pull you back,
To the place
That you can be well.
Back with your family
Where your heart and soul can be one.
Back in the circle,
Where working together,
Anything can be done.*

Love, Trish and Tyrone

Grandma: I've told you so many times that I love you, and I do. I wish I could express it the way no one else in the world uses. If I could create a star for you brighter, bigger and beautiful than the others, you might see just how you've always lighted my existence. Or if I could give you a rainbow with each color meaning something special of you, it might come close for you to see that you bring color into my life.

If I could take all my love for you and mold it into a sunbeam to warm you forever, then you would know without doubt what a difference you make in this world, what a difference you make to me. Happy Mother's Day, Grandma.

Love always, Andrea

Mom: You haven't been there 24-7, but yet, neither have I. I smile to know what a good mom you are to Timmy and Shauna. Life's been deep; I'm glad me and you made it through. You know I love you, so aye woman, don't think otherwise. Happy Mother's Day!

With love, Andrea

For my sister, Heather: I know we don't communicate much. But don't think my hard-head forgot about your b-day. I'll be thinking of you on this special day. Happy B-day, woman. I got love for you, so don't think otherwise.

Respectfully, Andy Case

Just wanted to wish my big bro', Thumper, the best b-day he could have (considering his circumstances). I love you and yes, I said that! You make me proud, Erin. Keep your head up and your heart down. Happy B-day!

Respectfully, Andy Case
