Wellbriety Conference – Children of Alcoholics

We must not forget the children of alcoholics. They are often neglected first by their parents and then by the recovery community. Too often they think it's their fault. This special gathering can be an opportunity to share the strength, hope, and experience of those who are the children of alcoholics.

Survival and Beyond Hope, Help, and Healing Gathering

July 4-7, 2002, University of British Columbia, Vancouver, B.C.

Join us as we host our first province-wide gathering, designed to bring together residential school survivors, their families, community organizations, members from various church denominations, government representatives, and the general public in the spirit of hope, help, and healing.

Who should attend? Survivors of residential schools, front-line community workers, leadership, and elders. Registration fee is $300.

Highlights: Moving Forward March, July 4; more than 130 workshops for front-line workers, survivors, and community leaders; cultural and fun activities each day and evening; presentations for the general public on the history and effects of residential school; special meeting area for elders; display area for artists and community healing projects; and a residential school exhibit at the Museum of Anthropology, hosted by the Aboriginal Healing Foundation.
