ABA Offers Scholarships for Minority Law School Students

The American Bar Association (ABA) Legal Opportunity Scholarship Fund works to encourage racial and ethnic minority students to apply to law school and to provide financial assistance to ensure that these students have the opportunity to attend law school for three years.

The ABA Legal Opportunity Scholarship Fund will award $5,000 in financial assistance annually to each scholarship recipient attending an ABA-accredited law school. The deadline to apply is Feb. 28, 2003. For complete application information, visit www.abanet.org/fje/losfpage.html.

An award made to an entering first-year student may be renewable for two additional years, resulting in financial assistance totaling $15,000.

Evaluation criteria include whether an applicant is a member of a racial and/or ethnic minority that has been underrepresented in the legal profession; financial need; personal, family, and educational background; participation in community service activities; and the applicant's personal statement.

To be eligible, an applicant must meet all of the following requirements:

- Be an entering, first-year law student in the 2003 academic year
- Achieved a minimum cumulative grade point average of 2.5 (on a 4.0 scale) at his or her undergraduate institution
- Be a citizen or permanent resident of the U.S.

Answer: Yes, in some cases the reimbursement is considered taxable income. You will receive a form 1099 from the tribe.

Question: My premium increased in January 2003. Will the tribe reimburse the increase?

Answer: Yes. Please mail me the benefit statement you received from Social Security indicating how much your premium increased. Non-penalized premiums in 2003 increased to $58.70 per month. We need your documents, though.
