

Individuals interested in the Tribal Court Spokesperson Program attend a training session in Siletz.

New Spokespersons Sworn In

Tribal Court held its spokesperson training in October and three people – Rebekah Goulet, Lisa Norton, and Susan Kay Bione – were sworn in.

They join Ray Blacketer, Arliss Chatterson, Keith Taylor, Andrew Viles, Michele Longo Eder, Linda Gast, David Gordon, Diane Henkels, Jeff Hollen, and David Lothrop as spokespersons.

The Siletz Tribal Court judges' panel, three attorneys, and two guest speakers collaborated at the training to instruct approved spokesperson applicants, prior spokespersons, and Tribal Court staff.

Trainers included judges' panel members Chief Judge Calvin Gantenbein, Judge Edmund Goodman, and Judge Robert Dickinson.

Attorneys who contributed their expertise were Linda Gast, regional director of Legal Aid Services of Oregon; Diane Henkels, private practice attorney; and Stephen Crispen, Siletz Tribal staff attorney.

On the last day of the trainings, the chief judge and court administration swore in new applicants who had completed the training and passed the admissions test with a spokesperson's oath. Tribal Court's grant project coordinator handed out plaques to the instructors and certificates to the attendees.

Individuals who took an honorary oath include Aline James, Rebecca Cude, Debra Davidson, Julie Godwin-Tucker, and Dianne McLeod. They can show that they've taken the training, but can't practice because they're not tribal members or members of a state or tribal bar.

The trainings were videotaped, exceptionally good food was provided, and materials were printed and handed out. Special thanks go to Dave Terry and Julia Bostwick of Pacific Media Productions, DeAnn Brown of Sweetwater Catering, and Lazerquick Printing.

Approved applicants who missed this training can view it by appointment.

Applications for the spokesperson's program are accepted continuously at Siletz Tribal Court. Call 541-444-8250 or 1-800-922-1399, ext. 250, at Tribal Court and ask for Julie, or write to Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians of Oregon, Attn: Tribal Court Project Coordinator, P.O.
