All That is Good

Respectively, Eva E. Clayton

Well, fall is in the air and I've been caught trying to button up summer projects! Probably a bit of procrastination has been standing in the shadows.

I am OK, it's been a busy summer. I've been running fast, but a few week-end warrior catch-ups and I think I'll be ready for winter rainwater.

The sunrise seems to be sleeping in and wants to go to bed sooner these days. I don't know about you, but I need to wring out a few more hours in my day!

Kids are back in school, the neighborhood has toned down a bit. What a flurry, grandkids with a wish list a mile long. Can't seem to stretch the old dollar as far (sorry) as the good ol' days. I'll need to live 10 lives for payback. But I feel it's a good thing when family cares and shares.

I asked the Brookings grandkids how their first day of school went. Grandson (sophomore) said it was OK, just needed to get his routine down. I agree, like getting to bed sooner the night before.

Our granddaughter is caught up in volleyball practice and (eighth-grade) politics. She's good, but we remind her of humbleness and team spirit; she has both.

The grandboys in Lebanon I drove to school, a sophomore who was squeaky clean and looking fine, and our fifth-grader who always finds a kiss and hug for grandma. I hope he never outgrows my hugs.

Our children must learn respect and be encouraged to strive toward big dreams. We as parents and community need to, I feel, give respect and encouragement. Iron out a few wobbles to ensure that our investments have every chance in which to succeed. Their reflection our reflection, a mirror of direct decendancy to all that is good.
