Pigsley Honored as Citizen of Year

The Oceanlake Elks in Lincoln City, Ore., have honored Tribal Chairman Delores Pigsley as the Elks' "Citizen of the Year."

Delores received a plaque commemorating this award on March 26, following the installation of the 2005 officers for the local Elks Lodge.

The award is given to a member of the community "who has demonstrated outstanding contributions to people and programs in the Lincoln City area," said exalted ruler Irwin Poretz in a letter to Delores informing her of the award.

"As the Siletz Tribal Council chairperson, we acknowledge and appreciate the financial help that you have approved for the city operations, such as the fire and police departments, schools, child care, programs for special-needs people, the hospital and libraries, plus the contributions to our charity activities, such as food and toys for our Christmas baskets," he added.
