Sprint and Chinook Winds Embarq on New Adventure

Chinook Winds Casino Resort is proud to have been selected to share in the announcement of Embarq, separation of the local company from Sprint Nextel, as the newest member of the New York Stock Exchange. They have also been named to the S&P 500.

At the New York Stock Exchange on June 1, Delores Pigsley, chairman of the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians, helped ring the opening bell when local Sprint Company became Embarq.

Christopher Miller, account manager for Sprint Business Sales, presented the nomination for a number of reasons.

"Chinook Winds and Sprint have enjoyed a long-term relationship. Even when we (Sprint) don't earn the business, they at least afford us the opportunity to try. We enjoy the honest, open communication - Chinook Winds is a true partner," said Miller.

"We are very excited about being chosen to be apart of this major milestone with Sprint and celebrating the listing of Embarq on the New York Stock Exchange. We have enjoyed the professional relationship with Sprint and the outstanding customer service that they have provided us throughout the years. Based on our past experience with Sprint, we are sure that Embarq is destined for success," said Jim Kikumoto, general manager of Chinook Winds.

Chinook Winds Casino Resort was selected from all Sprint Nextel business customers in the Western Region. This is the first time a company from the Northwest has been invited to an event of this caliber.

Chinook Winds, along with another Pacific Northwest customer from Seattle, represented the Pacific Northwest in New York City. The Western region includes Oregon, Washington, Texas, Wyoming, Nebraska, Minnesota, and Missouri.

Cheryl Ben represented Chinook Winds and the Siletz Tribe at the Rose Festival Parade in June. Chinook Winds is a part of the Executive Officers Club and Cheryl rode on the club's float dressed in traditional regalia.
