" I feel totally confident that my home will be warmer during the future winter months now that I was given an extensive home energy/weatherization check of this level. Now I know I don't have to second guess myself that my home does have cold air leaks and the State Certified Technicians reassured me that they are fixable."

On the left hand side of this photo is what an attic typically looks like and on the right is the same image. However, through infrared technology you can visibly see the void where heat is escaping!

Please help us congratulate our 2012 STEP calendar contest winners:
