

Youth gain work experience, earn income in TYEE (Tribal Youth Education and Employment) Program

Lexi Metcalf

Savanna Rilatos

Tenas Illahee Childcare Center

"Being a TYEE worker at the childcare has taught me that every kid is different and you have to handle them in different ways," said Metcalf.

Richard DeAnda (above)

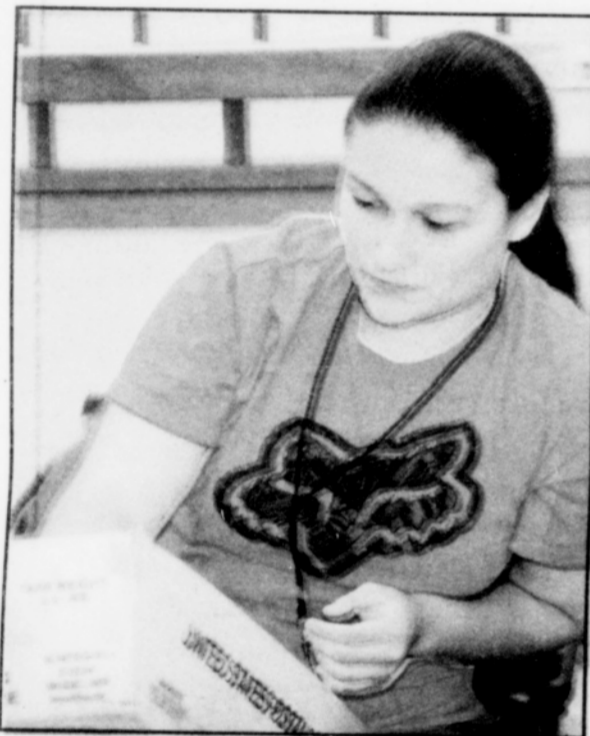

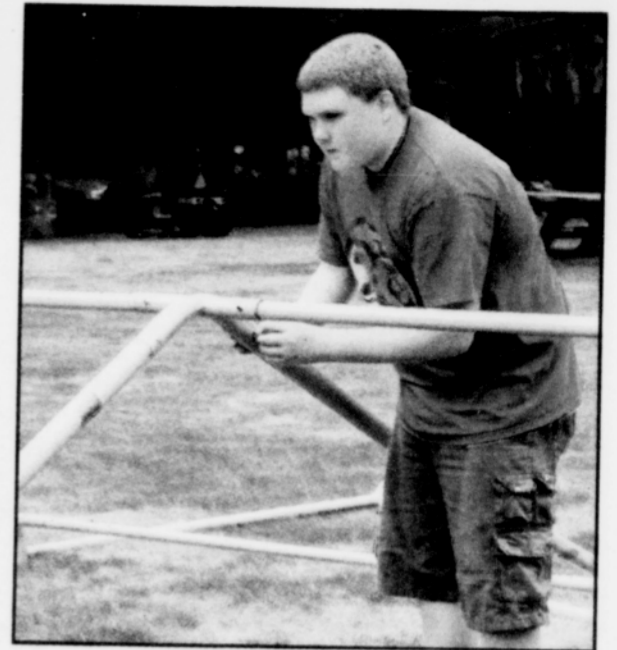

Dennis Lancaster II (above right)

Public Works

San Poil Whitehead (right)

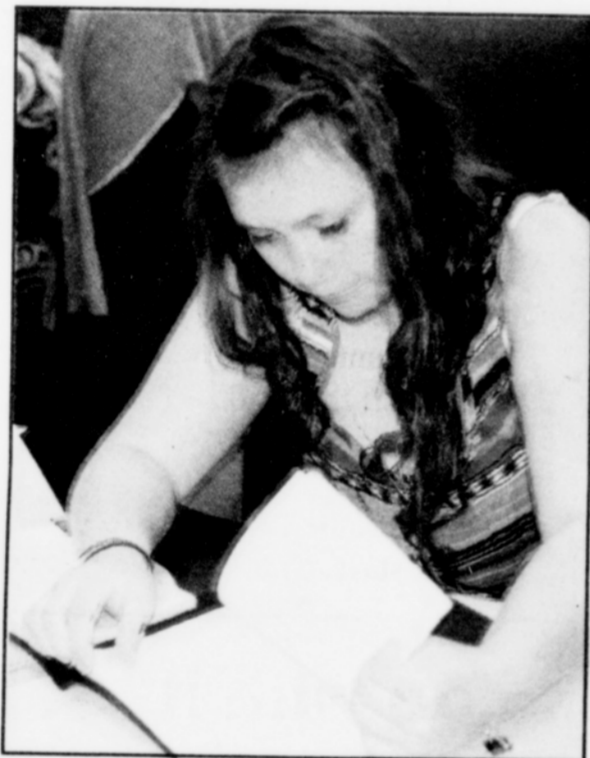

Records Management

DeAnda, Lancaster and Whitehead were just a few of the TYEE workers who helped set up tents for the annual Nesika Illahee Pow-Wow on Government Hill.

Sidney Rilatos

Accounting

Jazmyn Metcalf

Accounting

Brittney Jordan-Goodell

477 Self-Sufficiency Program

Photos by Morgan Crawford

Additional participants include
 Kaetlin Bayya
 Siletz Community Health Clinic
 Seth Benedict
 Public Works
 Frankie Rilatos Jr.
 Public Works and Fleet
 Sierra Warren
 Education

David Greenawald

Kai Skidmore

Healthy Traditions Project

Kai Skidmore and David Greenawald were two TYEE workers who spent a little time each day literally playing in the dirt. "The most rewarding part of working at the garden was getting to watch the things we planted and watered turn into something we can actually eat," said Skidmore.

Misti Warren

Siletz Community Health Clinic

Warren assisted with filing, organizing and answering phones, and helped build the clinic's float for the pow-wow parade.