Dancers of all ages take the floor at the Family New Year's Eve dance at the Tribal Community Center.

Family New Year's Eve dance a fun, sober celebration

The New Year's Eve Dance, sponsored by the Tribal Housing and Behavioral Health departments, was a big success.

Thank you Sheila and Isaac DeAnda for entertaining us with the music!

Families and participants from all ages attended and danced all night to ring in the New Year at a fun and sober event. Many volunteers from the community and various Tribal departments helped out.

A big thank you goes out to Frank Aspria for taking time to prepare the food.

We would like to honor the community members and supporters for this event. Without your attendance, we would not be able to enjoy wonderful times like this!

NikeTalk.com donates to American Indian College Fund

DENVER – NikeTalk.com, an online community dedicated to fans of sneakers and sports culture, donated $11,000 in November to the American Indian College Fund for scholarship support to benefit American Indian students.

“As the late Harvey S. Firestone once noted, ‘It is only as we develop others that we prematurely succeed,’” said Nelson Cabral, founder of NikeTalk.com. “True success, lasting success, is both inter-personal and inter-generational. By this measure, I can think of no more successful investment than to support the American Indian College Fund in its ongoing mission to assist thousands of dedicated scholars and cultivate a new generation of leaders.”

“We are delighted that NikeTalk.com is dedicated to the intellectual achievement and growth of tomorrow’s leaders in Indian Country through its support of the American Indian College Fund,” said Cheryl Crazy Bull, president and CEO of the College Fund. “A college education will help Native people to succeed in their personal, professional and community goals, and education is changing the face of Indian Country, one person at a time.”

The American Indian College Fund (the College Fund) is the nation’s largest private provider of scholarships for American Indian students. Founded in 1989, the College Fund has been “Educating the Mind and Spirit” of Native people for nearly 25 years and provides an average of 6,000 scholarships annually.

The College Fund also supports the nation’s 34 accredited Tribal colleges and universities located on or near Indian reservations. It consistently receives top ratings from independent charity evaluators. For more information, please visit collegefund.org.
