Cherokee Nation, SBA will host workshops for Tribally owned businesses interested in the 8(a) program

TULSA, Okla. – Cherokee Nation Technology Solutions (CNTS), a division of Cherokee Nation Businesses, is partnering with the U.S. Small Business Administration to host free, onsite training sessions and web-based seminars for Native corporations interested in joining the 8(a) program.

The workshops provide valuable insight for Tribally owned businesses, Alaska Native corporations (ANCs) and Native Hawaiian organizations (NHOs).

“We’re pleased to partner with the Small Business Administration because it will provide more resources to the American Indian business community,” said Cherokee Nation Principal Chief Bill John Baker. “At Cherokee Nation Businesses, we are committed to creating jobs and building a strong economy. This will allow us to play a vital role as mentors and educators across Indian Country as we continue to nurture and grow Tribally owned businesses.”

Working with the SBA’s Office of Native American Affairs, CNTS created curriculum focused on business development and the unique rules and considerations of the 8(a) program.

The sessions address the many challenges faced by Native businesses and offer operational and leadership strategies to build capacity, foster growth and expansion, and ensure sustainability.

CNTS also provides technical assistance to participating organizations.

“Our diversified businesses have experienced tremendous growth and success over the past few years,” said Steven Bilby, president of CNB’s diversified businesses. “We are honored to have the opportunity to work with the SBA to share our knowledge and passion so that all Native companies have the support they need to achieve success in their marketplace.”

The company offers 30 workshops throughout the U.S., which began in Oklahoma City in February.

Registration is now available for all classes through the end of April. Class schedule through April is as follows:

March 4	Seattle, Wash.
March 6	Portland, Ore.
March 18	Coeur d’Alene, Idaho
March 20	Great Falls, Mont.
April 2	Anchorage, Alaska
April 3	Dillingham, Alaska
April 15	Casper, Wyo.
April 17	Pueblo, Colo.

In addition, the company will host 12 webinars featuring specific topics from the workshop’s curriculum. The first online course is scheduled for March 13.

The Office of Native American Affairs, as part of the U.S. Small Business Administration, was created to promote and support American Indian entrepreneurs through Tribal consultations, development and distribution of promotional materials, and attendance and participation in national economic development conferences.

Cherokee Nation Technology Solutions was formed in 2008 to provide technical support services and project support personnel to its defense and civilian agency partners. The company provides a tailored management approach for complex government programs and disciplines, including information technology, science, engineering, construction, research and development, facilities management, program management and mission support.

CNTS is headquartered in Tulsa, Okla., and is part of the Cherokee Nation Businesses family of companies.

Cherokee Nation Businesses is the Tribally owned holding company of the Cherokee Nation. The nation and its businesses employ more than 9,000 people. CNB owns companies in the gaming, hospitality, information technology, personnel services, distribution, manufacturing, telecommunications, environmental services and security and defense industries.
