2016 concerts start with The Guess Who, followed by Peter Cetera

The Guess Who is a Canadian rock band from Winnipeg, Manitoba. Initially gaining recognition in Canada, the group also found international success from the late 1960s through the mid-1970s with numerous hit singles, including No Time, American Woman, These Eyes and Share the Land.

Several former members of The Guess Who, notably Burton Cummings and Randy Bachman (of Bachman-Turner Overdrive), have found considerable success outside the band. As a garage rock/rhythm and blues group during the rise of the British beat, their musical style primarily consisted of pop rock, blues rock, psychedelic rock and hard rock.

The band was inducted into the Canadian Music Hall of Fame in 1987.

The Guess Who continues to perform live dates on a regular basis. The current Guess Who lineup consists of Derek Sharp (vocals, guitars, since 2008), Will Evankovich (guitars, backing vocals, since 2014), Leonard Shaw (keyboards), Jim Kale (bass) and Garry Peterson (drums).

Show time is 8 p.m. on Jan. 29-30. Tickets range from $15-$30.

As a youngster, Peter Cetera made the rounds in local bands before landing a gig with The Exceptions, which later became Chicago.

Cetera's addition benefited Chicago in many ways. First, his tenor voice complimented the baritones of guitarist Terry Kath and keyboardist Robert Lamm. Second, together with Kath and drummer Danny Seraphine, Cetera made the rhythm section cook.

But it's as a singer that Cetera is especially noted. Questions 67 and 68, 25 or 6 to 4, Just You and Me, and Call on Me all testify to his ability. Eventually, Cetera became known as the voice of Chicago.

Now out of Chicago longer than he was in (the band broke up in 1985), he dislikes discussing his years in the group. He has turned down chances to re-unite with Chicago over the years, and famously refused to allow VH1 to use any of his songs in the Behind the Music episode about Chicago.

Cetera has mostly quit playing bass and recently started touring again after a long, self-imposed exile. He is, however, accessible on his website, where he answers questions and chats with fans.

Show time is 8 p.m. on Feb. 12-13. Tickets range from $40-$55.

Tickets go on sale 90 days in advance.

Concerts in the showroom are for ages 16 and older. Comedy on the Coast in the convention center is for ages 21 and older.
