Douglas fir

was responsible for more plantings than any other species. However, with consumers willing to pay more for the Noble, many growers began planting more of them. Last year, there were 5,578 Nobles put into the ground compared to 3,213 Douglas firs. Nordmann fir accounted for 885 plantings, and Grand fir accounted for 722 plantings.

"It's interesting to see that in the past five years, Douglas fir has dropped from 52 percent of the total plantings to about 30 percent while Noble fir has jumped from 39 percent to more than half of all plantings at 53 percent," said Goodwin.

The location of Christmas tree production in Oregon hasn't changed much throughout the years. Clackamas County remains the state's top producer with $32.4 million in sales from 15,200 acres of Christmas trees. Benton County is number two at $21.6 million from 8,140 acres. Marion County is number three at $17.4 million from 9,050 acres. Polk County is number four at $13.7 million from 6,090 acres.

Those four counties are responsible for 87 percent of last year's Christmas tree sales and account for three-quarters of all acreage in Christmas tree production in Oregon.

Finally, the survey details where Oregon Christmas trees end up. The number-one destination is California, responsible for 46 percent of all sales in 2001.

A combination of other western states -- Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Alaska, and Hawaii -- is responsible for 13 percent of all sales. The Gulf States region recorded 10 percent of last year's sales. Mexico recorded 9 percent of the sales.

Oregon itself bought only 8 percent of all Christmas trees sold last year. Neighboring Washington was responsible for 3 percent of the sales.

Foreign beer sales in Oregon are led by the brewer of Corona, according to the Oregon Liquor Control Commission (OLCC.)

Cerveceria Modelo, of Mexico, heads the list of foreign beer sellers in Oregon for the first seven months of 2002, OLCC said. The agency collects privilege taxes on beer and wine.

As of July 31, Mexican brewers of Corona and other malt beverages sold 46,471 barrels (31 gallons each) to wholesalers, up 13.9 percent from the same 2001 period.

Cerveceria Modelo is the fifth-leading seller to wholesales in the state, behind the U.S. brewing giants: Anheurser-Busch/501,427 barrels; Miller/312,667; Coors/281,580; and Pabst/64,951.

The nine other leading foreign beer sellers in Oregon through July:

Labatt, Canada/17,108 barrels; Heineken, Netherlands/13,741; Guiness, England/13,735; Beck, Germany/2,953; Pilsner Urquell, Czech Republic/2,201; Sapporo, Japan/757; Spaten Franziskauer, Germany/749; Quinquado, China/745; and Scottish & Newcastle, Scotland/570.

Malt beverages also are imported into Oregon from New Zealand, El Salvador, Italy, Belgium, Korea, South Africa, Singapore, Vietnam, Poland, Norway, Croatia, Morocco, Yugoslavia, Russia, Bulgaria, Laos, Slovakia, Lithuania, Estonia, and India.
