Firm lauded for cigarette plans

Oregon Attorney General Hardy Myers and the chief law enforcement officers of 42 other states, the District of Columbia and two U.S. territories announced that Exxon Mobil Corp. (ExxonMobil) voluntarily has agreed to implement major new policies to reduce the sale of tobacco products to minors.

An Assurance was filed by the Dept. of Justice in Marion County Circuit Court.

"This agreement is a critical step forward in the effort to curb tobacco sales to underage Oregonians," Myers said. "ExxonMobil's new policy, which includes enhanced employee training, elimination of self-service tobacco displays and corporate monitoring of franchisees, is a model to which all responsible retailers should aspire."
