The Savvy Senior by Carol Martin

Recently, The Seniors Coalition (TSC) announced its support for plans the Bush administration is reportedly considering to improve, strengthen, and simplify the Medicare program overall. TSC has argued for changes in the program that will bring it up to the level of service today's seniors have come to expect in quality health care plans.

"We want the president to know that seniors are behind him," said Mary Martin, TSC chairman and executive director. "Prescription drug coverage is the most important problem, but right now, we have a golden opportunity to strengthen the program in other ways as well. Medicare just hasn't kept pace with the choices, coverage, and benefits seniors enjoyed through private plans during their working lives.

"The lack of a prescription drug component is the most glaring inadequacy in Medicare, but it's not the only one. For example, Medicare still does not offer adequate preventative measures. At its inception, we didn't yet understand how important those measures would be. Today, we know," she said.

"Not only is the president on the right track, but he has a uniquely qualified partner in the incoming majority leader. Senator Frist has already proven himself a champion of seniors in his work on health care issues," said Ms. Martin. The Seniors Coalition supported the Breaux-Frist legislation that would have given seniors more health care choices under Medicare. TSC Chairman Martin believes that Dr. Frist's election as majority leader will mean more choices and higher quality care in the Medicare program.

"Additionally, we're pleased that the president will offer seniors the peace of mind we have argued for in any changes to benefits: that seniors always have the option to continue in the system they have grown accustomed to, if they prefer it," Ms. Martin added.

"We're cautiously optimistic. As the president considers the nation's domestic agenda for the coming year, we want to offer our complete support for his approach to Medicare, and encourage him to seize this opportunity to improve, strengthen, and simplify Medicare for the 21st century," she concluded.
