Cave Junction, Ore.
2/17/1942

THOSE WERE THE DAYS - The scene from downtown 'Caves' Junction (top photo) is believed to have been taken in the early 1940's when a soda pop cost a nickel and you could walk from one end of town to the other in approximately one minute. (Bottom photo) Recent photo of downtown Cave Junction shows a lot more buildings and pavement and fewer trees. The two photos were taken from approximately the same location and show a building that has survived and has housed such businesses as a barber shop/beauty salon, sporting goods store, variety store and what is currently the I.V. Senior Center Thrift Shop.
