

Red Cross volunteers lend hand

Betty Ward, the volunteer emergency services coordinator in the Rogue Valley chapter of the American Red Cross (AMR) is part of the AMR disaster relief operation in southern Texas where families have been devastated by hurricane Claudette. Ward will serve as the lead officer for the local disaster volunteers function.

With these and many other disaster volunteers from across the country, AMR is mobilizing personnel, equipment and supplies into southern Texas.

AMR shelters have been set up in several areas, providing shelter, hot meals, and emergency relief. Damage assessment teams are busy surveying the extent of Claudette's impact.

"The local disaster volunteers function coordinates what we call "spontaneous" volunteers from the area. These are individuals who come out and offer their time and energy to help their neighbors who have been hurt by the disaster," Ward said.

"The local volunteers might work with logistics or damage assessment. They might help out in a shelter or in a canteen service. It's our way of helping people in the affected area start rebuilding and recovering as soon as possible after the disaster has hit."

Ward, a resident of Sunny Valley, has served as a volunteer on 25 national disasters including the aftermath of the Sept. 11, 2001 disaster in New York City.

Last summer, in the Biscuit Fire disaster relief operation, in which dozens of AMR volunteers from all over the United States descended to help Josephine County, she served as the local disaster volunteers officer as well.

Ward is not the only AMR volunteer from the Rogue Valley Chapter to be sent out on current disasters. Another volunteer, Perry Prince, just returned last week after serving for two weeks in the New Orleans flood relief.

Jenny's, named in honor of the famed World War I biplane, is open for breakfast from 7 to 11 a.m., and for lunch until 3 p.m. Wednesdays through Mondays. Plans are to add dinner later; and to have an old-fashioned ice cream parlor as well. Eschen described the new business as three pilots offering good food via a somewhat unusual menu and providing an airport service for other pilots as well as the valley community. Aiyana Hursh and Alice Weber (waitresses at Jenny's Restaurant) stand next to a Grumman Gulfstream that flew into Illinois Valley Airport last week, and departed on Sunday, July 27. Information on who owns the twin-jet craft or who came into the valley was not available. One source said that the executive plane is valued at approximately $58 million.
