SLIPPERY ROADS - Heavy rain on Tuesday may have contributed to a single vehicle crash in front of the old Krauss Kraft building in the 30000 block of Redwood Hwy. A woman driving a Geo Metro ended up in the ditch at approximately 10:30 a.m. The name of the driver was not available at press time. She was transported by American Medical Response to Three Rivers Community Hospital for her injuries.

The Savvy Senior by CAROL MARTIN

Although stroke is the third leading cause of death and a leading cause of debilitation in the United States, a significant gap exists among Americans between general understanding of stroke and stroke prevention efforts.

According to a survey issued by The National Council on the Aging (NCOA), Americans understand that those who have had a stroke are at greater risk for a future one, yet stroke survivors are not taking all the possible steps to protect their health.

While 88% of those surveyed recognized that a person who has a stroke is at greater risk to have another one, statistics show that one-third of all strokes are recurrent, even though there are lifestyle changes and medications available today that can help reduce risk.

In addition to basic lifestyle changes, risk of recurrent stroke can be reduced by using appropriate medicines. For instance, many patients may benefit from antiplatelet therapy that prevents blood platelets from sticking together and clotting, thus helping to reduce stroke risk.

Research shows that after surviving a stroke, men have a 42% chance of having another one within five years, and women have a 24% chance during the same time period. Suffering an initial stroke also puts people at increased risk for having a heart attack, a leading cause of death that affects over one million Americans each year. Similarly, having a heart attack also increases the risk of having a first or recurrent stroke.

While two-thirds of all strokes occur in people over 65, only one in eight (12%) of those surveyed in this age group indicated they were most concerned about experiencing a stroke, given the choice of other serious conditions such as Alzheimer's disease and diabetes that result in fewer fatalities.

Additionally, 75% of seniors surveyed said they have never talked to their doctor about stroke risk.

"For older Americans, stroke poses a significant health risk, so it is alarming to us that so few seniors have discussed their personal risk for stroke with their doctor," said James P. Firman, president and CEO of NCOA. "Better education is clearly needed to help all Americans understand their risk of stroke to protect their health."
