

Oregon gamblers seek addiction aid

Thousands of Oregonians are seeking gambling addiction services, according to the Oregon Dept. of Human Services (DHS).

Oregon has the nation's highest recorded rate of persons seeking help for a gambling problem in the nation, said Jeffrey Marotta, DHS problem gambling services manager.

Enrollment in state-sponsored gambling addiction treatment programs grew from 2,323 in 1999-2001 to 3,432 in 2001-03, reflecting a 48 percent increase.

"Considering how reluctant problem gamblers are to seek help, it is gratifying to see so many gamblers place their bet on treatment," Marotta said. "It is a good bet, about 75 percent of the people who enter our programs resolve their gambling problem, improve their life, their family's security, and their community's health."

The large increase in gambling treatment is believed to be due to the success Oregon is having in addressing the issue, marotta said.

Oregon, which has received national and international recognition, has been cited as a model state in its efforts to stem the tide of problem gambling.

DHS, the Oregon Lottery and county governments have worked collaboratively to address gambling problems.

The 2003-05 budget provides DHS with $5.6 million in lottery funds for problem gambling treatment and prevention services.

Marotta said those funds will be used to help Oregon strike a balance between maximizing the benefits of state-operated gambling with minimizing the costs.

Proposed ODA rule to change regarding pesticide usage

The Oregon Dept. of Agriculture (ODA) is proposing to amend administrative rules dealing with the pesticide use reporting system (PURS) to reflect the lack of funding to provide a fully developed system.

The proposed amendment states that ODA will not take enforcement action against those who fail to report their pesticide use for 2002, 2003, and any other year in which insufficient funds are available to provide a fully effective means for pesticide users to report.

A public hearing is scheduled later this month to receive testimony on the proposal.

Oregon still requires pesticide use reporting. However, due to difficulties in funding development of a complete pesticide use reporting system, ODA adopted a temporary rule in April that stated the department would not take enforcement action against those who missed the deadline for 2002 reporting.

That temporary rule will expire on Oct. 18.

Also, no funding has been provided to continue a temporary reporting system which had been available from January 2002 to June 2003. No system is currently available to file pesticide use reports with ODA.

The proposed rule change on PURS enforcement will be the subject of a public hearing scheduled for Sept. 23 in Salem.

Written comments will be accepted until 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 30. Comments should be submitted to ODA, Pesticides Division, 635 Capitol St. N.E., Salem, OR 97301-2532.
