Labor Day weekend provided near perfect scenery during a stop along the Jefferson Scenic Byway between O'Brien and Happy Camp. At a picnic area overlooking the Indian Creek Drainage a doe proved she wasn't bashful about being seen in public. The doe climbed out from behind some nearby trees just beyond a picnic table and lingered for a photo shoot. The scenery which includes a view of the Marble Mountain Wilderness and the Klamath River Canyon was slightly tarnished from smoke blowing in from Oregon wildfires.
