

Biscuit Fire final statement

There is a 14-day limit on camping, said BLM.

In announcing details of the Biscuit Final Environmental Impact Statement (FEIS), forest official Scott Conroy said, "Our proposal is an investment in the land and people."

"We are investing in growing trees; restoring fire to its natural role in the forest; protecting communities and old-growth from wildfire; and capturing opportunities to provide jobs and wood for America," said Conroy, supervisor for the Rogue River-Siskiyou National Forest.

"This recovery plan," he said, affecting 4 percent of the project area, "provides opportunities for all — including those who seek solitude; clean, clear water; and abundant wild-life and jobs."

Greenpeace claims that the public has been left out of the planning, although some 23,000 letters were received on the Draft EIS and a community forum was held in Cave Junction.

The comments and fieldwork, said Conroy, resulted in changes between the draft and the FEIS, "including reduced salvage acres, reduced timber volumes and additional analysis."

The FEIS preferred alternative "protects communities and habitats by building 300 miles of fuel management zones; reforesting 31,000 acres; restoring 700 acres of meadows; implementing 83,000 acres of prescribed burns; and completing 70 miles of road work." The latter includes closure, decommissioning and stabilization.

The proposal calls for removing 370 million board feet of fire-killed wood, enough to build 24,000 homes.

Helicopters will be used to minimize effects, and to reduce temporary road construction (5 miles). No permanent roads will be built, said the forest service.

The Biscuit Fire began on July 13, 2002 due to lightning. It was declared under control on Nov. 8 after burning through nearly 500,000 acres of wildland, including most of the Kalmiopsis Wilderness.

At the peak of the fire, some 7,000 firefighters and support personnel were involved. The entire Illinois Valley was placed on a 30-minute evacuation notice, although it was not necessary to enforce it, as what many regard as a providential wind blew threatening flames away from the valley.

The "rescue station" announced by Greenpeace is to serve as an education center and campaign hub. The organization is calling for a moratorium on logging federal forestland.

Besides Greenpeace, there is undocumented information that Earth First!, which has been in Illinois Valley in years past, also will be involved in some sort of demonstrations during the next several months.

Greenpeace said that, "This area is representative of the Bush rollback of environmental policies."

The forest service and BLM will prepare and sign separate Records of Decisions (RODs) for the lands they administer. The RODs will be issued after the official notice of availability of the FEIS is published in the "Federal Register" on Friday, June 4.

The Biscuit Fire comprises one of Oregon's largest fires in recorded history. Besides burning in S.W. Oregon (467,702 acres), it burned through 23,235 acres of Six Rivers National Forest in bordering California; and 9,028 acres of land administered by BLM's Medford District.

In connection with the FEIS, Conroy requested an Emergency Situation Determination for the salvage portion of the project. If granted, there will be a 30-day period between the FEIS and RODs, "and then salvage may be implemented immediately after the decisions are signed."

The forest service said that it will issue three RODs, segregated on the basis of different management objectives.

The proposal announced on Tuesday "supports consideration of 64,000 acres of land adjacent to the Kalmiopsis Wilderness for their outstanding wilderness character."

Clothes dryer hazard noted

For safety's sake, never leave your house while your clothes dryer is running, urges the Leviton Institute.

It quotes the U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission that "dryers are associated with more than 15,000 fires each year that result in property damage, injury" and can result in death.

'Dangerous days' safety tips listed

"The 101 days between Memorial Day and Labor Day are the deadliest days on the road in our nation," said Sheriff Dave Daniel of the Josephine County Sheriff's Office.

"There will be fatal crashes and more teenagers and children killed on our roads during this time than any other time of the year," said Daniel.

Statistics show that 13,000 Americans will die and more than 850,000 will be injured during this time frame. Major contributing factors:

*Improper use or no use of seatbelts - "We know that 75 percent of child safety seats are improperly installed, and 20 percent of adult drivers don't buckle up," said Daniel. "Buckle up yourself and make sure your children's child safety seats are properly installed and appropriate to their size."

*Alcohol use - "Nearly a third of teen-age drivers killed on the road had been drinking," said the sheriff. "Never drink and drive, and do your best to stay off the road between midnight and 3 a.m., which is the time you are most likely to encounter a drunken driver."

*Fatigue - During the past five years, 1.3 million drivers attributed crashes to drowsiness. "Don't drive when you are tired."
*Car maintenance - Neglected maintenance accounts for 2,600 deaths annually. The biggest culprit is under-inflated or over-inflated tires. "Keep your vehicle in good repair and check your tire pressures every time you get fuel."

*Distractions - More than 1.5 million reported crashes involve some kind of driver distractions.

The most common distractions are eating, talking on cell phones and reading.
