Woman hurt in assault at Lake Selmac

A man assaulted a Selma woman while she was walking near Lake Selmac at approximately 9 p.m. on Thursday, May 27, according to a report to Josephine County Sheriff's Office.

Catherine Ragsdale, 39, contacted deputies to report that a white male in his 20s had assaulted her on Reeves Creek Road, near the Lake Selmac Resort.

She reported that a man snuck up behind her on foot and punched her in one eye before grabbing her around the neck. Her shirt was torn, as she managed to fend off her attacker and run to the resort, said JCSO.

No vehicle was heard, and the direction the suspect traveled is unknown.

She told investigators that as she was running down Reeves Creek Road, she attempted to stop two motorists by waving her arms for assistance, but neither vehicle stopped.

She suffered a bruised and swollen eye and complained of soreness of her neck and head. She was treated and released on scene by American Medical Response.

The suspect is described as a 5-8 white male, age 20-25, weighing approximately 150 pounds, with blue eyes, a long mustache, and shoulder-length blond hair.

He was wearing a black trench coat, white T-shirt, and dark pants with dirty white tennis shoes. Reports indicate he may have been walking with a cane.

Anyone who may have seen Ragsdale or the suspect in the area of Lake Selmac during the time of this attack is asked to phone the sheriff's Major Crime Unit at (541) 474-5153 or its confidential tip line at (541) 474-5160.
