Velva Jo Duncan

Velva Jo Duncan, 71. of Selma, died Thursday, July 1 at her home.

A celebration of her life will be held at 11 a.m., Saturday, July 10 at I.V. Funeral Home Chapel.

Mrs. Duncan was born Aug. 22, 1932 in Ada, Okla. She moved to Illinois Valley from Fairfield, Calif. in 1989. She worked as a fruit packer in Medford, and enjoyed gardening and fishing.

Mrs. Duncan is survived by her husband, Billy Duncan, of Selma; mother Velva Moore, of Battleground, Wash.; three sons, Dan Comer, of Clovis, Calif., Dale Duncan and James Duncan, of Santa Clara. Calif.: three daughters, Ginger Milbank, of Campbell, Calif., Mickey Barba, of Newark, Calif., and Susan Lamb, of Selma; three brothers, Raphael Moore, of Kenai, Alaska, Ronnie Moore, of Santa Cruz and Donald Moore, of Battleground; eight grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

In the American West. there were no master and peons, partly because on our dangerous frontiers all residents had to be armed, and many people carried their weapon with them at all times. The rifle, and later revolver, were great equalizers of men, and potent encouragements to civility and egalitarianism in all public dealings. - Karl Zinsmeister -

When all is said and done, it's the politicians who say it, and the taxpayers who do it. - John J. Plomp -

Cave Junction razed the lath house in Jubilee Park last week for a handicapped-accessible day-use area. The structure (left) had been used by I.V. Lions Club for storage of its Labor Day Festival equipment. The open-air stage, built and donated by the club to the city, is to the right of the now-gone lath house. (Photos by Shane Welsh)
