Melanoma, said the National Cancer Institute (NCI), is the most serious type of skin cancer, and studies find that the risk of melanoma is highest among people who have:

*A large number of abnormal moles, usually larger than ordinary moles, and which have irregular or blurry edges with colors from pink to dark brown.

*More than 50 ordinary moles.

*Fair skin that burns or freckles easily.

*A personal history of melanoma or one of the more common forms of skin cancer.

*Two or more relatives who have had melanoma.

*A weakened immune system.

*A history of at least one severe, blistering sunburn during childhood or teen-age years.

*Regular exposure to large amounts of UV radiation from the Sun. Artificial sources of UV radiation, such as sunlamps and tanning booths, also increase the risk of melanoma.
