CJ City Council adopts ordinances on sewer fees; prohibiting pigs and goats

By MICHELLE BINKER Staff Writer Sewer connections and fees, annexations and livestock marked the regular meeting of Cave Junction City Council Monday night, Nov. 22, in city hall. Among the first items of business, the council adopted an ordinance amending municipal code "to adjust service connection charges and procedures." Specifically, this amendment to Title 13, Chapter 13 sets a specific deposit minimum, and clarifies wording -- the interpretation of which had been questioned. Section 3 of the amendment, which was added between the first and second readings, codifies sewer-lateral size requirements and service slope. The section was added to "clarify" a recent issue, said Mayor Ed Faircloth. Without comment from either the council or audience, an ordinance was adopted amending municipal code to include "swine, ruminant and pseudo-ruminant animals," (specifically pot-bellied pigs and pygmy goats) among animals prohibited within city limits. Citing an identified need to expand the list of excluded animals, the council adopted the amendment 5-0. The council also continued discussion of how to get properties within the city limits, which are not currently connected to city sewer service, to do so. And, although the council had planned to continue discussing the annexation of landlocked "islands" within the city's boundaries, pertinent information was unavailable, and the discussion was carried forward. The council will meet next on Monday, Dec. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in city hall.

Senators note Oregon funds

Oregon will receive several hundred million dollars in federal funding for key projects throughout the state, announced U.S. Sen. Ron Wyden (D-Ore.) and Sen. Gordon Smith (R-Ore.). Wyden and Smith secured this funding in the fiscal year 2005 Omnibus Spending Bill, which has passed the Senate and the House of Representatives and is expected to move shortly to the White House for signature into law. The measure would fund numerous Oregon projects involving agriculture, energy and water, natural resources, transportation, infrastructure, community development, and health, education, and job training. Projects include: *Oregon State University (OSU) at Corvallis; $688,000 for the barley gene mapping project. *OSU's Solutions to Environmental and Economic Problems (STEEP) III; $645,000. *OSU; $351,000 for research at the National Laboratory for Molluscan Broodstock in Newport. *The Oregon Garden project at Silverton; $325,000. *OSU wood utilization research; $6,285,000.

Of that, Oregon will directly receive $13 million. *Regional hatcheries and facilities councils; $11.45 million. *West Coast groundfish projects; $8.8 million. *Oregon Partnership Methamphetamine Prevention Program; $250,000. *Coos and Curry counties' Oregon Methamphetamine Reduction Project;

$60,000. *Klamath Project for resource management and facilities operations; $27 million. *Improvements to the Columbia & Lower Willamette River; $20,018,000. Oregon will share in these funds with Washington state. *Operations and maintenance projects at Lost Creek Lake; $2.8 million. *Savage Rapids Dam removal; $2.2 million. *Rogue River Basin Project; $1,001,000. *Crater Lake National Park; $8,741,000 to remodel the park cafeteria and relocate the rim parking facilities. *OHSI School of Nursing; $370,000 for facilities and training. *The Medford Senior Center; $25,000. *Portland Interstate Max Light Rail Extension Project; $23.4 million. *Washington County commuter rail from Wilsonville to Beaverton; $9 million. *Eugene Airport; $1.25 million to install a new instrument landing system. *Medford Airport; $1.2 million for terminal construction. *Brookings Harbor Boardwalk; $225,000.
