

OMSI's Rhys Thomas wows LBMS Lydia Mae Anawalt helps Thomas in a demonstration of center of gravity and velocity with a ball.

Thomas simultaneously uses a paddle ball board, juggles two balls, balances another ball with a mouth stick, and spins a ring around one ankle.

We are at the very beginning of time for the human race. It is not unreasonable that we grapple with problems. But there are tens of thousands of years in the future. Our responsibility is to do what we can, learn what we can, improve the solutions, and pass them on.

'GOLLY-ODOLOGY' was the title of an hour-long presentation by Rhys Thomas, of Oregon Museum of Science & Industry (OMSI) to the Lorna Byrne Middle School student body in the gym Thursday, Feb. 10. The program is designed to teach students the scientific concepts of factors including mass, centrifugal force, balance, and inertia. In photo at right, Casie Mutina participated with Thomas as he balanced on a free-standing ladder. In photo at top right, Thomas happily congratulates students who each held a knitting needle with a spinning ball balanced on each. Students are (from left) Winona Gallegos, Celilo Nordal, Casey Pernicka, Kelsy Hefley, and Ben Kendall.

Imagination is more important than knowledge.

Reality is merely an illusion, albeit a very persistent one.

MILLER TIME - Bertha and Jerry Miller, of Wild River Brewing & Pizza Co., are winners of a full-color 12-inch advertisement in a promotion sponsored by 'Illinois Valley News.' The promotion was in connection with Super Bowl Sunday advertising. P.S. The Millers don't drink Millers, as they have their own Wild River micro-brewery which produces a variety of brews.
