

Sewer costs CJ concern

Pushing pooh uphill doesn't come cheap.

But adequate sewer service for anticipated housing developments on W. Schumacher Street is necessary, and in this case the cost must be borne upfront by developers.

That item was considered by the Cave Junction City Council Monday night, April 11 in city hall.

These considerations, plus an agreement among the three developers concerned to coordinate efforts and share the development of that section of sewer, prompted the council to consider establishing an "Advance Financing District."

The district would encompass the properties in question, and allow developers to recapture some of their initial outlay from subsequent infrastructure users.

The council plans to conduct a hearing on formation of the proposed special district during its regular meeting Monday night, May 9 in city hall. ~Michelle Binker

Good Shepherd Lutheran

Pastor Rory Scott's Sunday message dealt with the value of material items in our lives and what is, or should be, of ultimate value to us: the ransom paid by Christ's crucifixion.

How do we demonstrate that our lives are truly valuable? Do we care for others? Do we follow the Bible's teachings? Do we nurture our family relationships?

The Community is invited to the 18th Anniversary Celebration & Open House in the Pregnancy Center 481 S. Junction Ave. (near the Visitor Center and the Fountain of Life Church) on Saturday, April 23 at 1 p.m.
