Rural land help listed

Rural land managers reflect on their past and plan for the future in a new DVD produced by the Oregon State University Extension Service.

"Landmarks in Conservation" is designed to help rural land owners, farmers, ranchers and foresters devise sustainable natural-resource management plans for their operations. The interactive multimedia project utilizes DVD and Web technologies.

"This project draws on the experiences of nearly 30 land managers from across our state," said Bill Braunworth, agriculture program leader for OSU Extension Service. "It demonstrates the importance or resource management planning, whether you operate a 5-acre farm near Portland or a 100,000-acre ranch in S.E. Oregon."

The DVD and its companion website are a cooperative effort funded by the OSU Extension Service, the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service and a private gift to the OSU Foundation. The DVD holds nearly two hours of video clips, while the website
