

(Top left and below) A huge crowd heard 'Illinois Valley All-Stars' accompany Country star Jessi Colter, widow of Waylon Jennings, Monday, Aug. 5 on the last day of the I.V. Lions Club annual Labor Day Festival. Colter was invited by O'Brien resident Wayne Whitefield, a cousin of Jennings, to help the club bolster its scholarship fund, which last year provided five $1,000 scholarships to Illinois Valley High School seniors. During the past, I.V. Lions Club has donated more than $60,000 in scholarships. The festival and parade included (clockwise from top right) a display by the Early Day Gas Engine Association, miniature horses, I.V. Fire District, and 'Flora Bell' the clown. Fall Business Classes Starting

SOWAC Microenterprise Development Center is offering a free orientation and registration for the coming Business Readiness and Planning and Managing a Small Business classes.

The 4-week Business Readiness class is for individuals thinking about starting a small business who are not sure what is required and whether they are ready.

The 10-week Planning and Managing a Small Business class provides more in-depth understanding of starting and running a small business, such as business operations, product pricing, marketing, book-keeping, financial, cash flow and writing a business plan to maintain growth and obtain a small business loan. The 10-week class is also open to individuals who have started a small business and need tips on getting back on track.

Orientation and registration are held from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Grants Pass - Tuesday, Sept. 13 and Selma/Cave Junction - Wednesday, Sept. 14.

For more information and to sign up: Grants Pass - SOWAC Microenterprise Development Center, 779-3992. Selma/Cave Junction - Illinois Valley Community Development Organization, 592-4440.
