Booklet lists tree species of country

With hundreds of different species of trees growing in Oregon and throughout the U.S. Western region, the average person might be hard-pressed to recognize and name more than a handful.

"What Tree is That?"-- a unique 84-page pocket guide available from The National Arbor Day Foundation, makes this detective work fun and easy by showing how to identify trees in a simple step-by-step process.

The guide book begins by noting the distinguishing characteristics that separate one tree species from another. Dozens of richly detailed drawings accurately illustrate the specific shapes and textures of different leaves, needles, acorns, berries, seed pods, cones and other identifying features.

Popular trees such as oaks, maples, firs and pines are covered. The pocket guide also goes beyond these familiar species to include the lesser-known golden chinkapin and peach-leaf willow, redbuds and red cedar, sycamore and salt cedar, sequoia and spruce.

"Helping people enjoy and appreciate trees is central to the educational mission of the Arbor Day Foundation," said John Rosenow, foundation president. "Being able to identify trees is important to knowing how to care for them and how to plant the right tree in the right place," he said.

To obtain a guide, send your name and address and $3 for each guide to, "What Tree Is That?"/The National Arbor Day Foundation, Nebraska City, NE 68410. Or go online to arborday.org.

Ped-bicycle grant funds available

Approximately $5 million in grant money is available through the Oregon Dept. of Transportation (ODOT) for pedestrian and bicycle improvements projects.

Proposed projects must lie within the public right-of-way of a street, road or highway, said Michal Ronkin, ODOT Bicycle-Pedestrian program manager. Eligible projects include sidewalks, pedestrian crossings, intersection improvements, streetscapes, bike boulevards and minor roadway widening for bikeways.

Projects may include landscaping, lighting, bicycle parking and other features that enhance walking and bicycling. Proposed projects must be ready for contract in 2007-2008.

Projects will be selected through a statewide competitive process based on written applications and field review. Applications are due by July 28, and will be accepted from local or state agencies, tribes and other agencies with jurisdiction over roads open to the public. Recipients must supply matching funds to cover at least 10 percent of the project cost.

Final project selection will be made by the governor-appointed, citizen-member Oregon Bicycle and Pedestrian Advisory Committee in the fall. The Oregon Transportation Commission will give final approval to the selected projects in early 2007.

Application materials are available at www.oregon.gov/ODOT/HWY/KIKEPED/grants.shtml or may be requested by e-mail to Anushka.C.COSKAN@odot.state.or.us.

If you have questions about the grant program, phone Bicycle and Pedestrian Program Manager Michael Ronkin at (503) 986-3555.
