Spiral Living Center

Two workshops and an open house are offered during June at 9044 Takilma Road, site of the Frog Farm and Spiral Living Center.

The first workshop, "Beekeeping for Beginners," will be held Thursday, June 7 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. with Joy McEwen, a beekeeper who operates Diggin' Livin' Farm and Apiary in Cave Junction.

The workshop will explore the world of beekeeping including the hive, basic hive management, and needed equipment. Participants will even don bee suits and look into an active hive.

The course is open to the public, and there is a fee.

The second workshop, "Planting Tomatoes & Basil for Sauce & Salsa," will be held Saturday, June 9 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Want to grow lots of delicious tomatoes and basil? Learn the tricks of encouraging fruit production and how to protect your plants. Heirloom varieties and saving seed will be discussed.

This is a hands-on class; participants should bring gloves. Teachers are Christine Perala Gardiner, who has 30 years experience in horticulture, and Debbie Lukas, with a background of 20 years growing and making herbal products. The course is open to the public, and there is a fee.

A free Solstice Skill Share will be held at the Frog Farm on Saturday, June 16 beginning at 11:30 a.m. Many people are volunteering to share skills and make this "open house" or "open farm" possible.

There will be workshops in butchering, pole-peeling, tomato-trellising and flint-knapping, an herb walk, talks about bees and compost tea, storytelling, music, activities for children including paper-making and wagon rides, and more. Those with a skill to share that promotes sustainable living can phone the number below.

Spiral Living Center is a new nonprofit working to create a more sustainable community in Illinois Valley. Programs focus on ways to achieve self-sufficiency with an emphasis during 2007 on food production. Annual membership is $20, which includes a $10 discount on all workshops for a year. Volunteers are needed.

For more information or to register for classes contact spiral@frontiernet.net; P.O. Box 2093, Cave Junction OR 97523; or phone 592-3642.
