Critic's Choice

Thursday
10 p.m. on USA

Burn Notice: Someone is after Michael — in a big way. An assassin is trying to take him out, which makes his current project — trying to save a friend's daughter from the clutches of a prostitution ring — a bit difficult, to say the least. But he's the hero of this show, so we expect he'll make it out of this new episode alive. Sharon Gless also stars in "Old Friends."

Friday
8 p.m. on ABC

Set for Life: It's got Jimmy Kimmel as its host. It's got suspense a la "Deal or No Deal." So this new game show may appeal to fans of the comedian and late-night talk host, as well as those who enjoy the adrenaline rush of "Deal." Contestants get the chance to win a monthly paycheck that could be big bucks for years and years, small change for a month or two, or something in between. It's all in knowing when to say when and bringing the right advisers along.

Saturday
10 p.m. on HBO

Bill Maher: The Decider: If you watch his current-events series "Real Time With Bill Maher," you know where the writer and comedian stands on President Bush. So expect Maher to take more than a few potshots at Dubya during this stand-up special airing from the Berklee Performance Center in Boston. It's not all Bush bashing, though; Maher has an eye for the absurd in all things ... and something to say about most of them.

Monday
9 p.m. on PBS

History Detectives: Could the history sleuths have unearthed evidence of one of the first documentary films? A San Francisco man discovers some posters from the early 20th century advertising films about the Mexican Revolution. According to host Wes Cowan, the fine line between reporting the news and injecting a little drama appears to have been around even then. Also in this new episode, the detectives examine an intriguing autograph book and a legendary preacher's robe.

Wednesday
10 p.m. on CBS

CSI: NY: Off with her head — well, not quite. A young Frenchwoman dressed as Marie Antoinette drops dead during a fundraiser at the United Nations. The tears of the teenage girl whom the victim tutored help Stella (Melina Kanakaredes) crack the case. Danny and Lindsay link the murder
